COWIE TELLS OF THE COLLECTIONS. At the session of the naval organization court of inquiry this morning Paymaster Thompson, Civil Engineer Maxson and Chief Constructor Wilson testified that they had no knowledge whatever of any organizations among officers. Assistant Engineer Bieg let fall somewhat of a bombshell when he told his story. He said that the officers of the engineer corps had agreed to place their interest in the line of legislative amelioration in the hands of a self-appointed committee representing all grades of that corps, of which the witness is a member. They have raised about $2,500 from the corps for the purpose of defraying legitimate expenses.

MR. WOODBURY BLAIR EMPLOYED AS COUNSEL. When asked if any counsel had been employed he said that Mr. Woodbury Blair had been retained for the purpose of giving his advice in regard to any measure affecting the status of the engineer corps that might be introduced in Congress.
At first the witness showed a disinclination to divulge the name of the attorney, whereupon Mr. Loring exclaimed: You are making a very foolish objection!" "My hesitation is not personal, but I did not know whether or not the attorney would like me to mention his name." "Well, if he is ashamed of his employment he had better resign!" retorted Mr. Loring, whereupon the witness weakened and gave the name. This passage-at-arms was not put upon the record.

Mr. Bleg then testified that he was the treas urer of the committee. PAYMASTER COWIE ON THE STAND.

Passed Assistant Paymaster Thomas Cowie the author of the famous bill and of the letter to the naval officers, was called. He did not know of any formal organization among naval among naval officers to endeavor to secure the passage of any particular bill.

"Do you know of any instances when money or contracts to pay money have been solicited from officers for the purpose of influencing leglation? "I do not."

"The question," explained the judge advocate, "does not mean influencing legislation improperly.' "That's different," responded the witness. "There was a bill proposed by me and circulars relative to the whole matter have been sent to the Secretary of the Navy."

ordered to duty under the general store keeper "You are not on trial, Mr. Cowie, you know," suggested Mr. Loring, to relieve a slight embarrassment on the part of the wit-"There was also a letter to the secretary from

"He was to take charge of the bill, to see to all printing and to appear before congressional committees for the passage of my bill. I agreed to his proposition for a retaining fee of $5 each

"Do you know of any responses received by Mr. Thomas?" "I do."

"I myself received a check from the pay-maste, of the Galena for $100, representing twenty officers attached to that vessel; also the paymaster of the Monogahela a check for $30, representing the six officers on that vessel. Both checks were in-dorsed by me and turned over to Mr. Thomas. I know of no other instances. For the last draft Mr. Thomas sent me receipts made out in the officers' names, and I think that the last receipt was numbered 120."

"Have you yourself personally closed with his offer?"

WHO SIGNED THE CONTRACT?

"Do you know of any officers who have signed the Thomas contract?" "None but those cases I have mentioned." "What corps of the navy are represented in those fees? "The line, medical, pay and engineers; I won't be positive about the engineers."

To Mr. Loring the witness said that so far as he understands Mr. Thomas is to realize the entire proceeds of his circular letter to officers. To Mr. Looker he said that he was alone in his initiation of the movement,
